The Editor-in-Chief of the European Journal of Mental Health
Semmelweis University, Budapest*

The European Journal of Mental Health is a free open-access, peer-reviewed, interdisciplinary journal, accepting submissions from both the medical as well as social and behavioral sciences. We rely on qualified researchers' active participation in pre-screening and double-blind reviewing of the manuscripts. Board Members are experts holding a doctoral degree or having an equivalent amount of research experience, and represent different disciplines and clinical areas related to mental health.
